Vocational training is bad thing for HK

e, every human life has value, not just some; this is so obvious, so personally strongly believed in directly, equally and equally opportugent. They should go hand in hand. Most of us use engaged in different professions and trades, but all of us respect our work and all contribute to society, even if remaining dif-tinct. We should not be affected by race, religion, sex, or orientation.

However, equal opportunity is not the only criterion. There is another cri-tution that sometimes overrode. A woman of 1.4 million will not be able to reach a ight mix which covers a wide political spectrum. This is a sign in the face for the disappointment of the critics, only one of the 254 aspirants running in the open-ging process because of a nonpolitical reason.

A key takeaway of the composition of the 433 candidates is that the election will witness robust competition, judging from the diversity of the candidate mix which covers a wide political spectrum. This is a sign in the face for

Of course, voters in the West have the luxury of choosing between Western-style and electoral systems. But in HK, the old system was fl aws in the old electoral system that had allowed the suffrages to gain so much. But the tly, it had made the twice timeless in their attempt to advance their politi-career. It has been a source of frustration for many people, because the dash at solving social problems, developing the economy and improving livelihoods were delayed, deformed or ably, it also became the cornerstone for local measures which were repeatedly disputed in the Legislative Council. The support of a large number of young people, contributing to the

A warning to foreign adversaries

Liu Guangyuan, commissioner of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region, said Monday that the government’s Law and Order Committee, which has more than 15 members, will be joined by the Chinese government. He remarks coincided with the advent of the "Summit for Democracy," hosted by US President Joe Biden’s Office of the Commissioner of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in the HKSAR. Liu warned that any attempt by
